ESCA is a nonprofit association of professionals and volunteers, many of whom are cancer survivors, providing emotional support, practical help and information in English to cancer patients and their loved ones living in the Geneva, Vaud and French border areas.

My name is Alex. I am a cancer survivor and an ESCA volunteer! I was diagnosed with Non Hodgkin's Lymphoma in 2002 and in 2005 the cancer came back. I had chemo again and a stem cell transplant. I am now in full remission! This difficult journey of healing gradually revealed hidden gifts, skills and opened my heart. It made me a new person. I celebrate my health by running and climbing. I ran the Geneva Marathon and raised over CHF 2'000 for ESCA. I've also climbed Mt. Masada in Israel, hiked the Tour de Mt Blanc and climbed many other beautiful mountains in Switzerland, including the Matterhorn! I will be climbing Kilimanjaro to celebrate my health and also to help ESCA, who helped me tremendously through my journey of healing. This is my way of helping them so they can continue to help others traveling the same journey I did! Thanks for your support, Alex
